Defy Order of Circuit Judge
Allan Campbell To Vacate Plants

NO UNDUE EXCITEMENT

Peace Agreement Reached In Dispute Among Hotel
Employees

By James L. Kilgallen
N. S. Staff Correspondent

DETROIT, Mar. 17.—(INS)—Defying a court injunction, sit down strikers today still held possession of the eight plants of the Chrysler Corporation, refusing to obey the order of Circuit Judge Allan Campbell, that they vacate the factory by 9 o'clock this morning.

There was no undue excitement as the "dead line" passed, although the picket lines outside the plant were increased and there were more than the usual number of spectators in the vicinity of them.

The strikers have been in possession of the plants since a week ago last Monday.

As the "deadline" neared the strikers showed no signs of leaving. Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers' Union, was asked before he departed for Cleveland to attend a meeting of labor executives if he would or would not order or even suggest to the strikers that they accede to the court's demand. He would not commit himself.

Sheriff Thomas C. Wilcox had completed serving the sit-down strikers in all the Chrysler plants with writs ordering them to get out by 9 a. m. today. In none of the plants, he said, did he encounter any opposition to service of the writs.

The men took the matter seriously. According to Sheriff Wilcox strong sentiment has developed among them that the Chrysler Corporation is seeking to destroy their union.

"Determination of the stay-in strikers to fight to a finish, if need be, is pronounced," the Sheriff declared after making the rounds of the plants serving the writs.

Settlement of the labor flare-up that closed four of Detroit's leading hotels—the Statler, Book-Cadillac, Detroit-Leland and Fort Shelby—was a feather in Governor Murphy's hat. He made a hurried trip here from Lansing to settle the issue, and he made a quick job of it.

A peace agreement ending the hotel strikes was reached at Governor Murphy's conference with union leaders and the managements last night. The pact provided for the setting up within 48 hours of an arbitration board of three members to iron out the difficulties.

One member of the board was to be appointed by the managements, one by the unions and the third by Governor Murphy. The Governor promptly appointed Mayor Frank Couzens of Detroit. The other two members had not been selected early today.

Service in the four hotels re-opened this morning. Guests who had checked out were checking back in. They had gone to smaller hotels elsewhere in the city. The shutting back and forth was taken more or less good-naturedly although there was some grumbling on the part of the inconvenienced visitors.

The cocktail lounges and bars in the affected hotels opened last night but the dining rooms were not opened until this morning.

To Seek Judge's Removal

Somerset, Mar. 17.—Removal of Supreme Court Justice George W. Maxey as trial judge in the remaining Fayette County "third degree" cases will be sought by the Commonwealth as a result of his action in freeing State Trooper Anthony Sanute, it was learned today.

Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, special prosecutor declined to comment for the present, but it was learned he had conferred with his associates on the question. Three possible avenues of removal were open: Justice Maxey could be recalled by his colleagues on the State Supreme Court bench; he could be made the subject of impeachment proceedings in the legislature; and Governor George H. Earle could remove him from his office on recommendation of two-thirds of the House and Senate.

LEAVES HOSPITAL

Miss Catherine Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Johnson, 318 Jackson street, returned home Tuesday, from the Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, where she was operated upon.

A NEW BOON-DOGGLE

BOSTON—(INS)—You heard the one about the WPA worker and the shovel; now listen to this.

Appearing in Roxbury District Court in connection with a case pending disposition, Joseph Mulken, 24, of Dorchester, said his occupation on a WPA project was to count and measure scratches suffered by fellow-workers on building projects.

Abraham M. Keller Dies In Perkasio at Age of 75

PERKASIE, Mar. 17.—Abraham M. Keller, 75, uncle of president Judge Hiram H. Keller of the Bucks County courts, died in Grand View Hospital, here, Monday, where he had been a patient for three weeks. Complication of diseases caused his death.

The deceased leaves his wife, Mary Hoffman Keller; two brothers, Mahlon Keller, a prominent Perkasio business man, and Lewis Keller, St. Petersburg, Fla.; four children; two brothers and one sister. A sister of Mr. Keller, Mrs. Mary Deaterly, died at the age of 86, at her Bedminster home a few weeks ago.

The deceased formerly conducted an ice cream and bakery business in Doylestown.

Funeral will be held here today, with burial in Doylestown Cemetery.

Special Lenten Service To Be Held Tomorrow Night

A special Lenten service will be held tomorrow night in the Sunday School building of the Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, Wood street and Lincoln avenue, at eight o'clock.

The speaker will be the Rev. Victor Emanuel Jacobson, of Trenton, N. J. He will have with him 20 or 30 of his young people, who will play various instruments and sing gospel songs.

The Rev. Jacobson was at this church last winter, and brought a wonderful message. His theme for tomorrow evening will be "A Menagerie in You." The public is invited to attend, especially the young people of the Bristol churches.

Friends of Local Girl Honor Her at A Party

Mary Brennen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brennen, Swain street, was nine years old Saturday, and was hostess to a number of friends. The party was held in the afternoon, and the guests had a good time playing games. Prizes were given to Mary Frances Sasse, Blanche Gallagher and Mary Elizabeth Yeagle. Refreshments were served in the dining room and the table was decorated in green in keeping with St. Patrick's Day. Favors were balloons, paper hats and small baskets of candy. A large cake decorated with nine candles graced the table.

Those attending: Mary Roche, Virginia Saranzac, Mary Frances Sasse, Mary Ellen McDevitt, Jean Curran, Mary Wade, Blanche Gallagher, Dolores Klug, Mary McVaine, Jane Brennen, Mary Elizabeth Yeagle.

Mary received many gifts.

MAKE RESERVATIONS

Those who have not as yet made reservations for the Shepherds Delight Lodge annual dinner for Monday evening, and who wish same, are asked to telephone Mrs. William Borchers, Bristol 3283, today.

FIVE WEEKS REMAIN FOR THE FAVORITE BABY ELECTION; VOTES EAGERLY SOUGHT

Community's Favorite?

Remembering that just five weeks from Saturday the king or queen of the community will be crowned and that the magnificent loving cup, more than one thousand dollars in prize and other awards will be handed over to the winners, there is obviously no time to lose.

Everyone interested in the beautiful babies and their fortunes as concerns the Favorite Baby Election must be faced with the seriousness of keeping busy in the few weeks remaining and until the suspense that has gripped thousands in this community for several days past is relieved upon that momentous day—Saturday.

Two broad avenues are open to everyone engaged in seeing that their favorite comes in for the everlasting honor of being acclaimed the most popular baby in the community—the favorite of favorites. One is through making purchases at the stores of the community's merchants, who have, with this newspaper, made this unique election, the fame of which has spread already to adjoining counties, possible.

The other, and a very good way indeed, is through giving your support with new subscriptions and renewals to The Bristol Courier, one of the outstanding publications in this section of the Keystone State.

Eddington Man Hurt In Crash at Croydon

An Eddington man riding a motorcycle was injured this morning when he is said to have ridden into the left rear of an automobile at Croydon.

According to Corporal Evans of the State Highway Patrol, Early was riding on the Bristol Pike at Croydon and crashed into the left rear of an automobile operated by Robert Cameron, Jr., Newportville. Cameron was driving east on the Bristol Pike and about to turn off at a point near St. Thomas Church.

Early was taken to the hospital of Dr. J. Fred Wagner.

MARIE ANN PIERRO
Bristol

Blissfully unaware that she was doing anything but being her own sweet self, little Marie Ann Pierro was probably studying her campaign plans when the camera caught this interesting pose. Her friends are confident they have not erred in their judgment in pinning their hopes to this fair little one's cause. Marie Ann is the three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Pierro, 909 Beaver street, Bristol. She is a promising candidate indeed and one who merits the consideration she is receiving. Marie Ann likes to play with boys' toys and is very fond of dancing with her dolls. Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Pierro, Trenton, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Colella, of Bristol, are her grandparents. Mr. Frank Morrone, Trenton, N. J., is Marie Ann's great-grandfather.

Arrested For Murder After Fight in Telford

Doylestown, Mar. 17.—John Gary, 31, colored, of 539 Airy street, Norristown, was arrested in Montgomery County Jail at Norristown, this morning, charged with murder as the result of the death of a fellow WPA worker who was alleged to have been struck over the head by Gary while working on a sewer project at Telford, last week.

The victim is Peter Triolo, 55, of 806 Smith street, Norristown.

It is stated by officers that during an argument between Gary and Triolo, both WPA workers, last week, that Gary struck Triolo over the head with a shovel. Triolo was taken to the Grandview Hospital, in Sellersville, where he died last night at 10 o'clock. An autopsy was performed this morning under direction of Bucks County Coroner Dr. H. Clayton Moyer. It was determined that Triolo died of a fracture of the skull. The autopsy was performed by Dr. Kressley, Sellersville, and Dr. Stanley Moyer, Quakertown. The physicians stated the wound was of such a type that corroborates the belief the blow inflicted by Gary was responsible.

After the argument, Gary was arrested at his home, officers stating he was intoxicated at the time. He was held without bail to await the outcome of Triolo's inquest.

Montgomery county detective Albert Murphy lodged the formal charge of murder this morning.

The case will be tried in Montgomery county, inasmuch as the injury was said to be inflicted in the section of Telford lying in Montgomery county, the boundary line of the two counties bisecting the borough.

Nazis Unleash New U. S. Blast

Berlin, Mar. 17.—A new Nazi blast was unleashed at the United States today by the newspapers Schwarze Korps, organ of the black uniformed Nazi Storm Troops, and in the anti-Jewish Steurmer. The papers issued printed cartoons.

Commenting further on the now famous "La Guardia incident," the Storm Troop organ ostensibly wept for the United States, picturing it as a land ruled by night sticks, gangsters, big bankers and ambitious mothers seeking prizes for their daughters.

Five Dead in Paris Riot

Paris, Mar. 17.—With five officially reported dead and hundreds wounded in savage Communist-Fascist riots at Clichy, France faced a grave political situation today.

Government officials began a day of feverish activity, while the nation's population wondered whether more serious unrest was in store, or whether Premier Leon Blum would prove strong enough to restore calm.

Disclose "Love Club"

Canton, O., Mar. 17.—A select coterie of Ohio's business men were on tenderhooks today following the disclosure of a bizarre "love club" by police probing the baffling murder of Mrs. Rose Cable.

Authorities were still debating the advisability of making public the names of the men who maintained a co-operative love nest in the Akron apartment maintained by Deuber S. Cable, husband of the slain woman, for Theresa Ludwig, 45-year-old divorcee.

This sensation came out on top in the parallel bar event and the tumbling for ten points, and second on the horizontal bar and the rope climb. On each of these pieces he gave a stellar performance, especially on the mats, in which he showed the local followers a thing or two of what it's all about in tumbling, which is his specialty. His exercise on this piece was so superb that the judges gave him a total score of 9.7 for his wonderful exhibition.

In the other events, it took a high 8.3 to capture the parallel bar event from Flit Pieo, while his 8.1 placed him second on the horizontal bar and just four points behind Flit—and in climbing the rope in 5.9 seconds he grabbed another second place. These events gave him his 16 tallies.

So one might come to the conclusion that the meet, instead of a schoolhouse, was a circus.

Garden Club Lectures To Be Reviewed for Club

The regular meeting of the Travel Club will be conducted on Friday afternoon at three o'clock, in the club home, with Miss Frances Landreth and Mrs. J. Fred Wagner as hostesses.

The afternoon program will be in charge of the Garden Club Section. A series of lectures sponsored by the State Garden Club Federation for benefit of flower show exhibitors were recently attended by four members of the club, namely Mrs. John J. Williams, Mrs. Earl Tomb, Mrs. Walter Pitzonka, and Mrs. Elwood Gosline. These members will review the lectures for the club, giving suitable illustrations. The program is to be in charge of Mrs. Gosline.

A food exchange will also be conducted with Mrs. Russell DeLong and Mrs. Keith Rosser as chairmen.

HIGH SCHOOL 'GYM' TEAM UPSETS OVERBROOK, 34-20

"Flit" Pieo Rolls Up 23 Points
Out of a Possible
25 at Meet

DOYLE WINS 3RD TWICE

Coach Bill Dougherty's Cardinal and Gray gymnastic team surmounted higher peaks yesterday afternoon when they surprised a strong Overbrook High School squad by handing them a 34-20 lacing at the local gymnasium.

Of course the leader in the Cardinals' overwhelming victory was none other than the inimitable "Flit" Pieo, who did everything from ringing the bell in the rope climb in 4.1 seconds to giant swings, fly-aways, handstands, levers, double circle cut-offs, and a host of other artistic bits of trickery in his own scintillating manner on the various pieces of gymnastic paraphernalia.

Flit entered on five pieces in the meet and brought home the well-known "bacon" in first place on four of the five pieces—the horizontal bar, horse, rings, and rope climb. On the other piece he placed second, that on the parallel bars, thus for the five exercises he earned himself and the team no less than the amazing total of 23 out of a possible total 25 points. The extreme highest score a gymnast can earn on six pieces when the 5-3-1 point scoring system is employed is 30. But since Flit doesn't work on the mats he could only tally a possible total of 25 markers, so one can readily see the ability one must have to come home with such a high score.

As aforesaid, his climb of the rope in 4.1 seconds netted him first place on that line; his score of 8.5 out of 10 won first place on the horizontal bar; it took a 9.3 to capture the horse event; and his 8.9 score came out on top in the flying rings. On the parallel bars he missed first place by 4 of a point—Levick, who won the event, scored an 8.3, while Pieo came in with a 7.9 for second place.

It was his towering strength together with the ease with which he performed his exercise and the difficulty of each one on the various pieces that enabled him to place on every piece in which he worked.

While Flit was doing yeoman work for his coach and the boys from this borough, a heavy built and stocky lad from Overbrook darted into the spotlight with the local star to share honors with him. His name is Irvin Levick, junior A. A. U. mat champion, who battled Flit almost alone, but came in a close second by taking two firsts and two seconds in four events in which he performed, to score 16 of the 20 points gathered by his team, or four-fifths of their total score. The only other two places won by the Hilltoppers besides Levick's places were Bershtein, who placed second on the rings, and Snyderman, who took third place on the mats.

This sensation came out on top in the parallel bar event and the tumbling for ten points, and second on the horizontal bar and the rope climb. On each of these pieces he gave a stellar performance, especially on the mats, in which he showed the local followers a thing or two of what it's all about in tumbling, which is his specialty. His exercise on this piece was so superb that the judges gave him a total score of 9.7 for his wonderful exhibition.

NAME DR. STRATHIE HEAD OF BUCKS CO. SCOUTING COUNCIL

New President Started Scout
Work 15 Years Ago As Troop Chairman

GIVEN BEAVER AWARD

J. Purdy Weiss, Doylestown, is Re-elected Treasurer for Sixth Term

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 17.—Braving the unexpected blizzard, 493 persons braved the arctic blasts and gathered Monday night in the Court Room at the Court House to observe the program of the tenth annual Council meeting of the Bucks County Scouting Council. The rotunda of the Court Room had been made into a gigantic stage with two levels for scenes, one of which was eight feet above the floor level. Eight different acts, requiring 123 actors, displayed the effective work of the Council Committees. Seascout Leonard was the bugler for the occasion.

Dr. A. J. Strathie, Newtown, was elected to be the President of the Bucks County Scouting Council for 1937-38. The business meeting of the Council preceded the committee dramatizations. Dr. Strathie has a service record starting fifteen years ago as a chairman of a troop committee in Newtown. Recently, he was awarded the Silver Beaver Award for his distinguished service for youth, the highest award that can be presented by any Scouting Council. For several years, he was district chairman of the Delaware Valley district, and has been most effective in his leadership of the Educational Committee. The impressive dramatizations frequently presented before the public at the Scouting gatherings, and at the Doylestown Fair are the results of his leadership in the educational work making the public "Scouting conscious." He is replacing C. Wilson Roberts, Southampton, who was President during the past two years. Mr. Roberts successfully led the Council through the events of the Tenth Birthday Commemoration.

J. Purdy Weiss, Doylestown, was re-elected treasurer, and is starting his sixth term in office. Council Scout Commissioner will continue to be William Burgess, Jr., Morrisville, who with his neighbor, Hon. Thomas L. Stockham, elected Commodore have been in those offices for nine years. Representation to the National Council will continue to be the responsibility of Asher Biehn, Quakertown, and Dr. J. J. Willaman, of Bristol. Owing to the ill health of President Roberts, Vice President Walter W. Pitzonka, Bristol, presided.

The address of the evening was held, and was given by Past President Thomas Ross. Mr. Ross spoke of "Scouting Before Us." Arthur J. Eastburn, chairman of the Camping Committee, spoke concerning Bunkers. "Our camp is the result of the work of many persons over the past ten years. Great care was exercised in selecting the camp site after traveling 1500 miles and visiting thirty-one sites. Bunkers is established and is doing great things in developing the character of our boys and teaching them to become better citizens."

The highest Council Award to a Pack, Troop or Ship is the National Headquarters Ten Year Program ribbon, an emblem to be placed on the flag pole of the unit. It is only given to those units having a larger membership than the previous year, and who keep seventy-five per cent of the most recent year and the same percentage of the boys of the previous year. Units were honored: Langhorne Cub Pack, Cubmaster Eugene R. Boyd; Perkasio No. 2 Cub Pack, Cubmaster J. Fred Wagner.

Wife of Dr. Adolph Berg Dies; Ill for One Year

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 17.—Mrs. L. H. Berg, 46, wife of Dr. Adolph Berg, prominent Bucks County veterinarian, died at her home on Pebble Hill Road, Doylestown Township, Monday evening, following an illness of one year's duration.

Mrs. Berg was one of Doylestown's prominent women, being most active in club work. She had served for several years as secretary of the Village Improvement Association, and was also a member of the Doylestown Nature Club. For four years she had taught in the Philadelphia public schools. She came to the county seat in 1915 at the time of her marriage. The late Mrs. Berg was a member of the Hahnemann family, well-known in Philadelphia.

In addition to her husband, a daughter Betty, survives, as do also her mother, three sisters and two brothers.

The funeral service will be conducted tomorrow at a funeral home located at 1309 N. Broad street. Further service and cremation will take place at Chelton Hills.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17, 1937

ST. PATRICK: HIS DAY

Legend has it that St. Patrick died on March 17, 493 A. D., at the age of 106. Inasmuch as there is not even a legendary day for his birth, those who wish to honor him and Ireland do so on that date.

St. Patrick's Day has been observed for a long time. Records reveal a celebration in the American colonies almost 200 years ago. On March 17, 1737, Irishmen in Boston met to do honor to St. Patrick and to found the Charitable Irish Society. St. Patrick's Day was celebrated by the American troops at Valley Forge, and on March 17, 1780, the significance of the day was recognized by General Washington at camp at Morristown, N. J., in his orders of the day.

The data on St. Patrick are largely legendary, and no written mention of him occurs until the seventh century. Two writings exist which scholars generally ascribe to him—a "Confession," largely autobiographical, and a letter to the Christian subjects of one Coroticus, a chieftain in Britain. Each of these is signed by "Patricius, Bishop of Ireland."

Patrick was probably born in Roman Britain in or about 389. One early account says that his name before entering the priesthood was Suat. The Confession says his father was a landed proprietor and a Christian. At the age of sixteen, Patrick was captured by a band of Irish marauders and taken off to Ireland as a slave. He tended sheep for his master for six years, then escaped—either to Britain or to Gaul. He entered a monastery and was ordained a priest.

In or about 433 he was commissioned by the Church to convert Ireland from Druidism to Christianity. The choice may have fallen on him because he knew the Celtic tongue. At the time a few scattered Christians probably existed in Ireland, but without organization or union. St. Patrick's great cultural service was in creating the first real ties between Ireland and the civilization of Western Europe. It was due to him that Latin was introduced into the Emerald Isle. After his death Christianity became eclipsed in Ireland, and when it was revived the new growth sprouted largely from the seeds which St. Patrick had sown.

Celebration of St. Patrick's Day in the United States has become a little less widespread with the relative decline of the Irish strain in the population. In 1870, the Irish-born were the largest single group in the foreign-born population. The 1930 census showed only 923,000 Irish-born, representing only 6½ per cent of the foreign-born population and only three-fourths of 1 per cent of the entire population.

Child labor laws held up the appearance of an under-age concert pianist in Pennsylvania, and rightly so. Who likes to think of little sweatshop artists, toiling for a pittance of $2,000 a night?

House-wreckers in New York started wrecking the wrong house; but let them not despair. Let them remember the brave words of our President, "If we're wrong, we'll try something else."

A course at Harvard will offer training for career in public office. The first hour will be spent in cultivating the soapy inflection in "My friends—"

"Leisure to Repent"

by Ursula Parrott

CHAPTER XIX

If either Keith or Felicia had insisted on telling Eustace! Instead, they had deceived him, apparently so blithely. That deceit seemed to overlay with tarnish all her life-long affection for her sister, all her own love for Keith, the romances that she had so cherished of their moments of closeness.

Once she thought wildly: "Perhaps they deceived me, too. Perhaps they always cared about each other, and that's why Felicia wanted me to marry Gilbert, and why Keith didn't ever much want to marry me." That suspicion grew in her.

Past Berlin, on the way to Moscow, she and Gilbert were thrown more closely than ever before into each other's physical presence. By the accident of the time of year, and the approaching May Day celebrations in Russia, transportation was almost impossible to get. They were obliged to share a compartment all the night across East Prussia, all the day after, across the long stretches of the plains of Poland.

Gilbert took as much pains as possible to save her from embarrassment at their sudden proximity, but it made her curiously aware of him. In the night listening to his breathing in the berth opposite hers, all through the day sitting facing him, he became more real to her than he had been.

Besides, she had the rather usual reaction of a person used to America and the obvious cities of Western Europe on the train journey, that she was going farther and farther from any world she knew. It was all sliding away behind the train wheels. Gilbert was the only connecting link with what had been before.

The Russian frontier, reached in darkness, with bright lights shining on the rows of barbed wire and the signs in many languages reading "Communism" and "Abolish Frontiers," overwhelmed her, made her feel very small and inconsequential.

"Something like looking at the Pyramids," she told Gilbert. "Only intensified, because this is alive, a force continuing."

"A force, all right," he said. "In the ornate, badly lighted compartment of their pre-war railroad carriage, she said solemnly: 'I'm glad you're here. For no sensible reason. I'd be afraid, making this journey alone.'"

He just said: "You look much too young, sometimes, to be traveling anywhere alone." But his eyes questioned her.

She could not answer their question then, but it disturbed her. How lonely he looked occasionally, how disappointed, for all that he was invariably cheerful! She had taken everything from him that he chose to give her, and gave him nothing but smiles, and pleasant words when she felt in the mood to give those.

They had gone about and about, looking at modern cities and ruins of cities, seeing plays, what had he got out of it all, except dreariness, and a dreadful hurt?

She had never thought before that, if he loved her as she loved

Keith, he must have suffered at least as much as she.

All their first day in Moscow, Gilbert thought her mood odd—when they were what he called "proper tourists," went to the Kremlin and admired the gorgeous jewel-collections, and were made a little sad by the empty echoing cathedrals; when they went on a tour of a new suburb, when they visited Lenin in his tomb, looking slightly contemptuous of eternity.

She had bright flashes of gaiety and moments of being so remote that she did not notice when Gilbert spoke to her.

Back at the Metropole, she said: "Let's dress for dinner, even if nobody else does."

"We'll be as conspicuous as people in tweeds at the opening of the Metropolitan."

"Never mind, for once. I want to celebrate."

What she wanted to celebrate he could not tell. At dinner she fell silent, did not touch her food, just sipped the wine he'd ordered, said, apropos of nothing: "Do you like this dress?"

He told her that he admired it—in fact, that he had never seen her look better. That was true. In her oyster-white taffeta frock, in a pale gray velvet wrap with a white fur collar high about her throat, all the delicacy of her skin and the lights in her soft hair showed.

"Do they call your hair chestnut, Denise?"

"Sort of. Neither blonde nor dark, just commonplace. Why should her voice, saying that not significant sentence, be so tense?"

"Anything but commonplace, darling. It's the most beautiful hair I ever saw."

"You think I'm generally beautiful, don't you? Most people don't—they don't look at me twice if Felicia's in the room."

"She shines like an electric light; you're luminous like the moon."

"Don't be unkind, Gilbert. Maybe she won't shine so brightly any more."

He had not meant to be pinkish, and said so.

In a voice soft but very far away, Denise said: "That's all right."

"Are you tired tonight, Denise?"

"Not at all. . . . I was just thinking."

Of nothing, he supposed, concerned with him. He had grown used to knowing that her thoughts were seldom about him.

Her blue eyes regarded him now, as if she were surprised to see him across the table from her. That look he had seen in her eyes before. It always depressed him.

She said abruptly: "You are really fundamentally kind. Not many people are."

"You make me sound like a St. Bernard, rather, Denise: kind, faithful, moderately intelligent."

Her laughter, as always when it was just friendly and gay, as if they were good friends, warmed him. "Do they have night-clubs here, Gilbert? I'd like to dance."

The tourist directed him to a gypsy cafe, where the music was excellent of its kind, and a fantastic assortment of the proletariat seemed to be enjoying themselves in a manner not unlike that of the bourgeois in cafes with music the world over.

He was interested and diverted, besides being pleased that Denise seemed to be lighter of heart than since before that cablegram came. Even so, he was surprised that she seemed altogether unwilling to go back to the hotel, in spite of the rather tiring day she'd had.

It was past three before she said, finally, "May as well leave, I suppose," and said nothing else, all the way to the Metropole.

On the stairway, walking up the single flight to their rooms, he saw two tears caught on the edge of her long lashes. There, she was grieving again for that man who had so quickly forgotten her! And what to do to help her, he did not know. Probably she did not want him to notice even that she needed help.

He unlocked the door of her room for her, and said lightly: "Sleep well. It was an amusing evening, wasn't it?"

In the strangest voice she said: "Come in a minute, Gilbert."

Under the old-fashioned chandelier, she turned and faced him. She was trembling. "I wanted to tell you that—that if you love me, it's all right."

He took a step toward her. He struggled with the greatest temptation of his life. Those two tears that he had seen, slid down her cheeks; but her mouth quivered in a smile.

It took him a long minute to find his voice. "Denise, my dearest, it isn't quite as simple as that. Whether you love me or not is important too."

She struggled; he could see her struggle, for composure. He took her hand then. "Everything's all right, Denise. Only for both our sakes, tell the truth. Don't pretend."

She said shakily: "I don't feel as you do, Gilbert, because I can't really feel anything at the moment. Only—I thought if it would make you happier—"

She grew confused. He moved his dark head once, in a sudden violent gesture of negation.

"Leave me my pride, Denise."

He saw—that was the most bitter thing—that she was relieved. But suddenly she did something so spontaneous, so impulsive, that he was comforted. She put her arms around his neck. She pulled his head down and kissed him.

When she looked up at him then, her smile was almost steady. "I'm saying thank you. I suppose I did just want to escape thinking things out. But, Gilbert, you are so nice, really."

He said, "Thank you, darling." Then he said, "Good night," and went to his own room, happier than he had been in weeks. After that night, he kissed her formally every morning, every evening; and sometimes, for a breathless moment after that kiss, he hesitated. But though she kissed him gently, he was aware that some reluctance held her still.

And he said to himself, over and over: "Not until she loves me—not because she's sorry for me, or feels under obligation. For the sake of the chance I think we have again, not until she's ready."

BRISTOL PINMEN WIN OVER NEW RIVALS HERE

By Louis Tomlinson

The Bristol Recreation Bowlers, led by Herb Yates and Joe Amisson, gave Jim Murgie's Delco pinmen an unexpected setback when the clubs met on the local alleys Saturday night. The Recreation five came out on top in two of the three matches to win the set. It was the Bristol team's first home game in the Philadelphia League—a circuit they recently joined as a result of one of the clubs withdrawing from it.

The Murgie Delco Alley five is composed of some of the best bowlers in Philadelphia all of whom rock and roll the maples in the Phila. Meagher League which is the fastest in the Quaker City. Among the quintets in this circuit are the Rosatto-Barry Stars, who lead the circuit, and the Sun Oil and Farr Radio teams.

Among the players with high bowling reputations in and about Philadelphia are Bart, Wright, Stevens, Dornheim, and McKitt. These players hit for 1000 pins in the second game, which was the only one won by the league leaders. Wright hit for 235 in this game and Bart for 223.

Bristol's high game was the final in which they knocked off a total of 962 pins. Herb Yates was high for the Recreation bowlers in this tilt with 227 while Joe Amisson hit 204.

The first match was taken by the local stars by exactly nine points, mainly due to Joe Amisson's 215 in the anchor position enabling the winners to pull ahead. This was the outstanding match of the evening, although the final was also quite close, but again Bristol was the winner by 41 pins.

Bart, of the visitors, was the leading scorer for the evening when he rolled over the maples at a 641 clip, hitting 193, 223 and 225. He was closely followed by his teammate, Wright, who knocked them down for a total of 603. For Bristol, Herb Yates, hitting 190, 179 and 227 for a combined score of 596. Joe Amisson with 215, 156, and 204 for the three games gave him a final tabulation of 575 pts. A glance at the second game scores reveals that every Bristol hit his low for the evening in this match, while at the same time the Delco five, except for Dornheim, hit for their highest score for the night. This explains the locals' defeat in this tilt, otherwise they might have swept the three games.

On Saturday night Bristol will travel to the Quaker City Alleys.

The scores for last Saturday night's games were:

Bristol	172	158	—331
Bailey	135	—	183—328
Stewart	172	182	—354
Encke	195	168	166—529
Yates	190	179	227—596
Amisson	215	156	204—575

Murgie's Delco Stars	908	833	962	2713
Bart	193	223	225	—641
Wright	177	235	191	—603
Stevens	154	176	138	—468
Dornheim	210	173	180	—563
McKitt	165	197	197	—559

The Delco rollers hit for 112 pins more than Bristol in total pins.

HUGE FLOYD MARSHALL TO FACE LITTLE WOLF

TRENTON, Mar. 17 — Huge Floyd Marshall, Arizona giant, will face Chief Little Wolf, in the feature two fall out of three, 90-minute time limit encounter at the Arena tonight. Joe Cox was originally scheduled to wrestle Little Wolf but the sudden death of Joe's father forced him to cancel all his matches.

Marshall was elevated into the wind-up spot on the strength of his record here. In his last two matches, he defeated Eli Fischer and George McLeod. McLeod's only previous defeat was a questionable one at the hands of Ernie Dusek. Floyd has been away for some time in South America where he met and defeated the best men that continent had to offer. It is bound to be a slam-bang affair.

Scotty McDougall, bare-footed and colorful Canadian, will take Marshall's place in the semi-windup against the skillful Russian, Matros Kirilenko. In other supporting matches, Bob Managoff, who made a great hit last week, meets Ed Cook, Washington State football star; Les Ryan, belligerent Irishman, who lends his brogue to the St. Patrick's Day program, against Bobby Roberts.

The first bout will start at 8.30 p. m.

lastic meet, was an individual meet with Flitt on top at the end of the proceedings. Hence one might interpret the score not as it read—Bristol, 34; Overbrook, 20; but rather: Pieo, 23; Levick, 16.

However, we must not let these two stars take too much credit from those who co-starred with them, only on a smaller scale. For instance, Dick Doyle gave two excellent performances on the high bar and the parallel to come in third in each event, but despite this swell work he could manage to salvage only two points from the total left after Flitt and Levick were through.

Then Bill Mignoni and Bill Gallagher both demonstrated excellently on the horse and mats respectively to place second on their individual piece. And in considering the competition Bill Gallagher was up against, he did nobly.

Finally, little Junior Joe Snyder startled the fans by pulling a fast one in coming in at the third position with a fine exercise on the horse and for his work received one point which will enable him to win his letter this year. An interesting thing about Joe was the nice exhibition of unexpected bit of rope climbing he showed the fans who doubted his ability to scale the entwined threads to ring the bell in 10.5 seconds. This was as much a surprise to him as it was to anyone else, as one of the rope climbers became ineligible for competition and in the last minute rush the coach failed to notify the new climber until it came his turn.

To conclude the local scoring, John Vandenberg scored an even 7.0 for third place on the rings, and Walt Tomlinson's climb of 5.4 seconds in the rope event placed him third from the final Bristol points.

The Cardinals placed in every event, and two on every piece except the mats in which Bill Gallagher's second was the only place gained on that piece. On the other hand, they made a clean sweep of the side horse by placing all three with Pieo, F. Mignoni and Snyder coming in in one-two-three order which was a big factor in the final score and deciding the winner. And just to show their superiority over their opponents in this event, George "Peanut" Brown came in fourth with a slightly lower total than Snyder. Thus, of the eight entrants on that piece, Bristol took the first four and Overbrook took what was left, necessarily they had to win 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th places.

Incidentally this same team is the present gymnastic champions of the Public High League of Philadelphia, and since Bristol is the District One, F. L. A. A. gym champs, they proved they could win outside of State competition. And it was this same team under scholastic rules that upset the strong Temple Freshmen just recently. Intercolligate rules were in effect in this meet. So for the season Bristol won and lost a meet out of two.

The point system used was 10 as the maximum, with the 5-3-1 scoring system being used for 1st, 2nd and 3rd places, respectively.

The results of the events were as follows:

Horizontal Bar: 1, Pieo, Bristol, 8.5; 2, Levick, Overbrook, 8.1; 3, Doyle, Bristol, 7.8.

Side Horse: 1, Pieo, Bristol, 9.3; 2, F. Mignoni, Bristol, 8.0; 3, Snyder, Bristol, 6.0.

Parallel Bars: Levick, Overbrook, 8.3; 2, Pieo, Bristol, 7.9; 3, Doyle, Bristol, 7.6.

Rings: 1, Pieo, Bristol, 8.9; 2, Bershtein, Overbrook, 7.4; 3, Vandenberg, Bristol, 7.0.

Mats: 1, Levick, Overbrook, 9.7; 2, Gallagher, Bristol, 7.9; 3, Snyderman, Overbrook, 7.1.

Rope Climb: 1, Pieo, Bristol, 4.1 seconds; 2, Levick, Overbrook, 5.0 seconds; 3, Tomlinson, Bristol, 5.4 seconds.

Judges: 1, Dougherty, Temple Freshman Gym Team; 2, Schneider, Temple Freshman Gym Team; 3, Danser, Temple Freshman Gym Team.

Name Dr. Strathie Head of Bucks Co. Scouting Council

Pettit, Jr.; Doylestown Troop No. 1, Scoutmaster Lewis Nobles; Treves Scout Troop, Scoutmaster Wm. E. Forepaugh; Riegelsville Scout Troop, Group Chairman Arthur W. Osborne; Southampton Scout Troop, Scoutmaster Frank Hay; Chalfont Scout Troop, Scoutmaster Ronald Wilson; New Britain Troop, Scoutmaster Dr. Charles A. Weed; and Quakertown No. 2 Troop, Senior Assistant Scoutmaster Gerald Rosenberger.

Scout Executive Wm. F. Livermore gave his annual report. His study of the work of the Council indicated a great growth at this time. There are 1313 boys and young men with 397 leaders and committeemen working with them. This is a gain of 393 boys and 15 men during the past year. It is one of the largest gains the Council has ever made. Plans are being made for the Jamboree, and the Standard Den, Patrol, Crew, contest for Scouting Day, April 10th. A memory trail is suggested for Buccoo Camps to keep alive the traditional things that have been done by those men called by the Great Scoutmaster. Earlier plans should be made for troop camping at Buccoo.

The cooperation of the newspapers has done much to encourage boys to do the right thing in life, and to give appreciation to men who have been giving exceptional service. Bucks County is giving the same amount of money for Scouting today with 1313 boys as it did when there were 531 boys with business conditions relatively the same. The last year, first aid was successful and plans are developing for a life saving course. The co-operation of the County Judges in arranging the Court schedule to accommodate the placing of the settings, the janitors of the Court House for their helpfulness, and the County Commissioners for their permission to use the facilities were of the greatest help.

It required a large staff of leaders to stage the production. Chairman Dr. A. J. Strathie of the Educational Committee was the advisor. Announcer, Harold D. R. "Years ago, people used to have telephone trouble pretty often. Today there's mighty little repair work on telephones. I just fixed a worn out cord in one house and they told me it was the first telephone trouble they'd had in eleven years. I can't vouch for that, but I do know that telephone equipment is getting better every year because our research people are never satisfied. They're always trying to improve your service. Of course, it's not a hundred percent trouble-free yet — but when trouble does come, we get it fixed in a hurry. Nobody wants to be without telephone service these days."

Research that eliminates repairs also helps to keep down the cost of service. Today almost everyone can afford a telephone. You can have one in your home for less than a dime a day. Just call the Business Office.

SEND IN THE COUPON and you'll find that the Packard Six costs less to buy than you ever dared hope.

And here's more good news... the Packard Six can challenge any car for low-cost operation. This is true for two reasons...

First, because this powerful Six is unusually thrifty with gasoline. (Ask us to show you the actual gas mileage that local owners are getting).

Second, because the car is designed so simply that it costs very little to service. For example, most service operations can be performed on the Packard Six in less time, with less labor hours, than on cars lower in price!

And the Packard Six will not only need very little service but will last longer. This long mechanical life, coupled with the famous lines that keep Packards looking like Packards, make it the ideal car for the man who buys out of income.

So fill out and mail the coupon, and get the pleasantest surprise in motoring!

AMELIA EARHART LANDS AT HONOLULU ON FIRST LAP OF SPECTACULAR FLIGHT AROUND WORLD; SPEEDS AT 170 MILES

"First Lady of Air" Forced To "Put On the Brakes" So As Not to Beat the Sun to Hawaiian Islands—Passes Exploratory Clipper 400 Miles From the California Coast

By Richard Haller (L. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WHEELER FIELD, HONOLULU, Mar. 18—Amelia Earhart brought her silver-colored seven-ton transport plane to a landing here today and thereby wrote another chapter in her spectacular flying career.

America's Number 1 woman pilot, with three male companion aides, swooped down out of a soft Hawaiian sunrise to complete the first lap of her contemplated 27,000-mile equatorial circuit of the globe.

Miss Earhart drove her sleek plane, an $80,000 "flying laboratory," westward over the sparkling Pacific at a terrific speed—so fast, in fact, that she had to "put on the brakes" so as not to beat Old Sol to the Hawaiian Islands. She did not want to land at Wheeler Field until daybreak, but a tail wind whipped her along about 30 miles an hour faster than she anticipated, carrying her so near her goal that she throttled down and almost coasted under the bright moon that reflected her plane on the gentle swells of the great western ocean.

Leaving the mainland at 4:37 p. m. yesterday, Miss Earhart soared over historic Golden Gate and headed westward.

Rocketing along the 2400-mile hop to Wheeler Field here at 170 miles an hour, Miss Earhart overtook two other adventurers of the Pacific airlines—two Pan-American clipper ships.

About 400 miles off the California coast she whizzed past an exploratory clipper, bound outward to blaze the way for service to Australia in the near future. Then, 900 miles on her way, Miss Earhart passed the Hawaiian Clipper outward bound to Manila by way of Honolulu and to the Pacific Islands, with passengers and freight.

It was an epic of fast moving program which gave pause even to the intrepid aviatrix and her three aides, Harry Manning, radio man and co-navigator; Fred J. Noonan, navigator, and Paul Mantz, technical advisor. The trio will drop off along the way and leave Miss Earhart alone at Australia for the rest of the great jaunt around the world.

Radio reports from the plane revealed that Miss Earhart and her three male companions were smiling and joking over an "early breakfast" of hot chocolate and turkey sandwiches.

The numerous gadgets in the "flying laboratory" were working perfectly, according to the messages which flashed through the air at regular intervals from the control cabin of the plane.

HONOLULU, T. H., Mar. 18.—(INS)—Amelia Earhart, America's noted woman flyer, early today passed the halfway mark in her 2400-mile California-to-Honolulu dash, the first of her projected round-the-world flight.

As she passed the phantom milestone marking 1200 miles from California, Miss Earhart radioed that "all is well."

Her brief message added she was cutting down the speed of her plane so she would not reach Wheeler Field, the U. S. Army's big airport near here, before daybreak.

Editors' note: Sunrise at Honolulu is 6:18 a. m. local time which is 8:48 a. m. PST.

Last night Miss Earhart's ship passed the two Pan-American Airways Clippers which took off from Alameda Airport, Cal., shortly before she left the adjoining Oakland Airport.

Miss Earhart was aided by favorable winds.

HUSBAND OF AVIATRIX CHECKS WIFE'S FLIGHT

George Palmer Putnam is The Busiest Man at Oakland Airport Today

JOTS DOWN NOTES

By Harold Heroux
L. N. S. Staff Correspondent

AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Cal., Mar. 18.—(INS)—George Palmer Putnam was the busiest man at the Oakland Municipal Airport today as his wife, Amelia Earhart, soared over the Pacific to Honolulu, first stop on her round-the-world flight.

He talked to Pan-American Airways radio operators, jotted down notes and made personal announcements to the press of the latest positions of the $80,000 "flying laboratory" piloted by Miss Earhart.

Throughout the night he never left his office, furnished him here by the United States Department of Commerce.

At all times he expressed the greatest confidence in his aviatrix-wife. He was a different man than the George Palmer Putnam of January 1935 when, during the Honolulu-to-Oakland flight of Miss Earhart, he fretted:

"I'd rather have a baby." Putnam exclaimed today: "Miss Earhart will have to hold back her throttle so she won't reach the islands before daybreak."

"I haven't worried a minute since she left."

"I know that the wonderful take-off yesterday will give her supreme confidence in herself and her plane."

"Miss Earhart lifted the plane—which carried a load in excess of 14,000 pounds—into the air after a run of 1,887 feet, in a period of 25 seconds. I consider this exceptionally good piloting."

Amelia Off at Last on Her World Flight

After many delays, Amelia Earhart finally took off from the Oakland, Cal., airport in her Lockheed Electra, with Honolulu as her first stop. The "Flying Laboratory" is shown over the huge Golden Gate Bridge a few minutes after the start, in a picture flashed by Soundphoto from San Francisco to New York. Miss Earhart was accompanied by Captain Harry Manning, navigator; Frederick Noonan, navigator, and Paul Mantz, technical expert.

STATE WILL REVOKE DRIVING LICENSES FOR SERIOUS LAW VIOLATIONS AND FREQUENT MINOR INFRACTIONS

HARRISBURG, Mar. 18.—Secretary of Revenue John B. Kelly has invited officials of Pennsylvania cities to co-operate with the State in combating the rising automobile accident rate in cities.

The drive is being initiated to rid the streets and highways of flagrant violators of the law and of those who are frequently involved in accidents by permanently revoking their licenses. Authorities of Pittsburgh, Scranton, Allentown and Bethlehem have already agreed to co-operate in the plan.

It has been found that authorities in cities have had some difficulty at times in securing convictions against violators through inability to secure Grand Jury action, through political interference or because of refusal of physicians to declare drunken drivers intoxicated.

The plan provides that a copy of every arrest report shall be forwarded to Harrisburg where the charge is filed against the driver's record. Regardless of whether the driver is convicted

TWELVE COUNTY SCHOOLS ENTER SPELLING CONTEST

Will Compete With Students From 24 Schools of N. J. and Pennsylvania

TO BE HELD SATURDAY

Twelve Bucks County high schools will attempt to keep the spelling championship of New Jersey and Pennsylvania in Bucks County for another year when they vie with 24 schools of the two states in the eleventh annual Peirce School Spelling Contest to be held on Saturday at the Peirce School, Philadelphia, auditorium, starting at 10 a. m.

Quakertown high school will be defending the team championship won last year when they defeated Barnegat, N. J., high school in the finals.

But two members of the Quakertown team which last year spelled its way to the championship appear on this year's team, Moyer Hunsberger and June Landis. The balance of this year's team will be made up of the following: Elaine Henckeroth, Dorothy Clymer and DeArmond Lindes, Helen Horvath and Marion Detweiler will act as alternates for the champions.

Moyer Hunsberger, the 15-year-old spelling champion from Quakertown, went to the finals last year for the individual championship, losing to Anna Johnson, of Tuckerton, N. J., high school, on the word "racemec." Hunsberger has high hopes of taking the individual award this year.

The competing schools held spelling contests of their own to determine the individual and team representatives to compete in the Philadelphia event. They were as follows: Bensalem high school: Nessie Barclay, Alice Smith, James Kelly, Caroline Zuvich and Margielou Palmer.

Bristol high school: Sara Swartley, Gerald Carr, Elva Reider, Ruth Carter and Dorothy Shive.

Doylestown high school: Frances Myers, John Fullam, George Peters, Hugh Boyd and Claire Shapiro.

Falls Township high school: Richard...

TWO BUCKS CO. BOROUGH TAKE STEPS FOR ZONING

Doylestown Boro' Approves Zoning; Perkase Adopts An Ordinance

ADVOCATED FOR YEARS

Two Bucks County boroughs have taken steps to give to their residents zoning ordinances.

In Doylestown borough zoning has been approved, with an expert being employed to prepare for the move. Perkase borough has adopted its zoning ordinance, and soon hopes to have better control of the construction of the town.

Doylestown Borough Council has taken definite steps to give to the community its first modern zoning and building ordinance that will not only save the property owners of the town many dollars in the future but will prevent for all time, haphazard building development.

Zoning and building ordinances, advocated for years by the present chief burgess of the town, George S. Hotchkiss, will soon become a reality in Doylestown, for Council has authorized that D. Knickerbocker Boyd, Philadelphia, be retained as an advisor to draw up the two ordinances for Council before they are put before the people for approval.

The motion to retain the zoning expert was made by Councilman George E. Willard and seconded by Councilman Frank D. Good, and unanimously passed. Instead of the estimated fee of close to $5000 that was mentioned about six years ago for expert zoning service, the present fee to study conditions in Doylestown and frame the proper ordinances will not exceed $2500 for the expert's service and it no big complications arise this fee will be smaller.

AT A SESSION HERE

Introduce Commissioner Burgess at Lower Area Scouting University

John W. Burgess, Morrisville, was introduced Tuesday evening at the Lower Area Scouting University as the new field commissioner of Training. Mr. Burgess was first a Boy Scout, and later a Scoutmaster. He became Mate of the Morrisville Scout Ship "The Robert Morris," and of the first Quartermaster Scouts in the Bucks County Scouting Council. Recently he was Neighborhood Commissioner in his home town. He will assist Scout Executive William F. Livermore in the conducting of training courses for Cubmasters, Scoutmasters, Skippers and Committeemen.

The topic of "Scouting and Methods of Education" was discussed by superintendent of Morrisville schools, M. R. Reiter. He said: "Discipline should be from within. We should do right for the desire to be right. True discipline is behaving because we want to, not because we have to. Rewards have their place in education but we must be careful not to let the award take the place of the thing to be done. Competition is a very good way of learning but a lot of harm has been done through competition that did not have any result of learning."

The project method has been the Scouting method for years. Mr. Reiter, of Morrisville high school manual training department, spoke on the subject of "Projects." It was his opinion "Projects are learning by doing. Keep Scouting within the mental, physical and manual ability of the boy. The earlier training of a boy must be considered before giving him a project. Use projects as a means of self-expression. Co-ordinate the activities to get a logical sequence. The Scoutmaster should be a helper, and not a puller or driver."

Neighborhood commissioner David Neill lectured on "Program Planning." He stressed the need of developing all unit programs along an annual basis re-checking each month, and going over the details of the weekly meeting with the Green Bar men.

The Cub Leaders had a separate course with field commissioner of Cubbing Frederick H. Schmidt, Perkase. The patrol leadership course was directed by training field commissioner Walter V. Rutherford. Scout executive William F. Livermore expressed his thanks for the co-operation he had received from the Lower Bucks District men during the council meeting arrangements. Suggestions for advancement progress were made by field commissioner Jesse Wendkos. It was recommended that patrol instruction

Burgess Urges Support Of Cadet Fund Drive

Burgess Clifford L. Anderson, today, appealed for support in the drive for funds for the Cadet Drum and Bugle Corps sponsored and directed by the members of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion.

A campaign to raise $1500 with which to re-equip the corps is now in progress and contributions are being solicited.

In his appeal to the public Burgess Anderson said:

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS: It is estimated that $1500 will be required to properly re-equip the Cadet Drum and Bugle Corps of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, and

WHEREAS: This corps has done so much to favorably advertise our borough and has made such a wonderful record of having captured four consecutive state championships at the annual conventions of The American Legion, and

WHEREAS: The Cadet Drum and Bugle Corps provides a wonderful training and discipline for the youth of this community, and does much to properly mould the characters of the youths enlisted therein, therefore be it

RESOLVED: That every resident of Bristol join in and contribute to the desired fund so that the corps can be placed on a favorable basis to represent Bristol in competition with other organizations. Let us as a matter of civic pride not only maintain the corps on its present standard but endeavor to even raise this, so that the corps' appearance and performance will as it has in the past reflect honor and glory upon our community, the borough of Bristol.

CLIFFORD L. ANDERSON.

Burgess.

A POOR START

Automobile fatalities in the United States reached an all-time high of 3,050 for January, this year, the National Safety Council has reported. Ironically enough, "favorable driving weather" was cited as a major factor in the increased death toll. In other words, the better the conditions for driving, the more persons drive and the less careful those more persons are.

"Carelessness among city motorists" was the other major factor noted. That always is a major factor in the nation's deplorable accident record. So is carelessness among country motorists. In January of this year, however, the Safety Council noted "unusually high death increases" in the cities, where the fatality rate rose 32 per cent from January, 1936. This was due in part, no doubt, to the fact that January, 1936, was a wintry enough month to keep many motorists off city streets and to lead others to drive with exceeding care.

Thirteen cities of more than 500,000 population averaged an increase of 26 per cent in automobile deaths. Only Boston, Chicago and San Francisco, among the major cities, showed decreases. St. Louis and Milwaukee totals were the same as for January of last year.

Cities between 250,000 and 500,000 made a worse showing, their combined death rate jumping 45 per cent above January, 1936; and cities between 100,000 and 250,000 were even worse, with an increase of 58 per cent. Far better was the record of cities between 25,000 and 50,000 with only a 9 per cent rise. Best of all was the showing of cities between 50,000 and 100,000 where the automobile death rate remained unchanged.

Among the states showing increases were most of the larger ones, including New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, California, Massachusetts and New Jersey. Nevada made the best record with a clean slate, no automobile fatalities in January 1937, against two in 1936. Only seven other states cut their death rate from January, 1936.

Making the maximum allowance for that "favorable driving weather" in January the nation's driving record was most dispiriting.

HOLDOUT PUBLICITY

As an item of pre-season publicity, the baseball holdout appears to have lost its old pull. It is with no regret that we note its failure this year to beguile the public to any large degree with the money quarrels of Gehrig and Dizzy Dean and their respective owners.

A suggestion from Florida has it that both are already signed to contracts, and that the delay in admitting it is to accommodate any further publicity value a holdout has. This is sheer optimism, we believe. American League fans particularly rose to new heights of apathy this spring as to whether Gehrig would ever play ball again, and if so, for how much. The sports pages generally have observed a stony silence on the matter for a couple of weeks.

The annual ceremony of the empty fountain pen, with Ruth looking the cameras straight in the eye as he scratched away at a paper that might have been a contract—the actual contract having been signed some time before—was part of the Ruth show. Babe has retired, and we hope in time to say the same of the yearly ordeal of the fake holdout.

Two Bucks Co. Boroughs Take Steps for Zoning

pers, will take charge of the necessary surveys. He wrote the present Philadelphia code, together with his associates, and is the founder and former chairman of the American Institute of Architects. He recently addressed the Rotary Club of Doylestown and, while a guest of Councilman G. Thawley Hayman, became interested in Doylestown's proposed zoning and building ordinances.

Mr. Boyd explained zoning and building ordinances in detail. He advised Council to get a code prepared immediately, and that the town should be divided into fire zones as soon as possible. The zoning ordinance, he explained, should be in favor of the property owner. Mr. Boyd estimated that it will take about six months to finish a complete zoning and building ordinance for the town. With the exception of a few maps there will be no engineering fees connected with the service.

"I feel that the time is ripe right now for zoning and building ordinances," Councilman Hayman declared. "We have to adopt zoning sooner or later and if we wait too long Council may receive a lot of unfavorable criticism, and I would hate to be criticized about something that has been overlooked."

President Clayton appointed Councilmen Hayman, Moore and George R. Smith as the zoning committee.

During a special meeting of Borough Council, Perkasie borough's zoning ordinance was given its final reading and it was adopted. With the adoption of this ordinance the Perkasie Zoning Commission which was appointed recently and which is composed of Robert A. Benner, Thomas S. Kramer and Claude E. Benfield, will have complete control of the construction of buildings in the borough.

The ordinance defines in a clear manner which sections of the borough shall be set aside as manufacturing centers, where the merchandising sections shall be located and which sections shall be set aside for residences.

One ruling that all residences shall be located forty feet from the curb, and at the meeting last evening Jacob H. Horn, a local real estate dealer, sought a modification of this. He asked that in case all property owners in a block agree, that the buildings be only thirty feet from the curb. Council, however, refused to make the change. Mr. Horn requested that this apply only to Class A residences. The commission will start to function immediately.

Three Parole Cases Are Heard By Judge Boyer

During the trial, it was revealed that he has been a patient in various mental hospitals, and that he used a knife in an attack on William A. Fleming, who operated the "Silver Star," following an argument about serving colored people.

Defending his actions Sharpe testified that he was a Southerner and would not have white and colored people served in a roadhouse which belonged to his wife.

Leon A. VanDeWater, who was convicted of drunken driving, was discharged by Judge Boyer. The defendant, who lives at 14 Wetherspoon St., Princeton, N. J., was sentenced November 23, 1936, to pay the costs of prosecution, pay a fine of $200 and serve 13 days in the County Prison.

VanDeWater was arrested while operating a car in Bristol while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Because he was unable to pay the costs or the fine, he was kept in prison until released Tuesday.

Jesse Lewis, of Hulmeville, who pleaded guilty September 11, 1933, to charges of assault and battery on six bills, was refused a parole by Judge Boyer and the case was continued until Friday.

The defendant served three and one half years out of a total of five, but was unable to assure the Court that his behavior in the future will warrant the granting of a parole.

"Leisure to Repent"

by Ursula Parrott

CHAPTER XX

Their mail was forwarded slowly from London. They had been in Moscow nearly three weeks, when one morning as he took their letters from the tray, he saw addressed to Denise a letter in a smart erratic handwriting, saw on the flap of the envelope "Mrs. Eustace Gardner Dayne," and her New York address.

He had the strangest feeling, carrying that letter upstairs, that it would greatly, for good or bad, affect his chance with Denise, and hers with him!

He knocked on her door. It was one of her mornings for "extra sleeping" as she called it, and her voice just half awake, said: "Come in. I'm enjoying a very dull breakfast in bed, Gilbert."

She sounded cheerful enough about it, and looked altogether lovely in a bright blue fluffy negligee, with her hair just pleasantly tumbled.

"Hurrah! You have heaps of American mail. Was the food any warmer downstairs in the dining-room? I expect not much."

"Letter for you, Denise."

When he handed it to her, and she looked at the superscription, he saw her face change. "I've got things to do, Denise. Business letters. Do you suppose you'll be dressed and feel like sightseeing in an hour?"

"Yes, I'll dress right away, Gilbert."

"No hurry." He went out of the room, and made himself stay away, through a full hour.

She sat up in bed holding that letter in her hands lightly, as if to hold it close would burn her. She watched a small fleet of clouds move across the incredible soft blue of the sky outside her high window. When they were gone, she still stared at that oblong of blue emptiness.

Letters from Felicia had been bright punctuations of her childhood since the years she still had a governess, and Felicia had just gone to boarding-school—of her young girlhood when she was at school, and Felicia was a debutante—of her own debutante years, when Felicia was on her honeymoon and the letters had exotic postmarks. Always the moment of opening a letter from her older sister had been a gay moment. Felicia had the gift for writing amusingly, warmly, making her affection for Denise shine through her light sentences on scenery, society and places to buy things.

In all those years Denise would never have believed that there would come a day when she would open a letter from her sister with dread and a kind of sudden sharp dislike.

Not since the afternoon that cablegram came had she written to Felicia, but had waited until a time should come when she might know what to say. The time had not come yet.

Then she set her pretty mouth. No need to dread anything Felicia might write about. The things she wrote which had used to seem so important, could not be important any more. That was gone with the rest.

The letter read:

"Well, my pet:

"I judge by the complete absence of daily cablegrams, transatlantic telephone inquiries and flowers

(telegraphed anywhere in the world, as the ads say) with your best wishes attached, that you have no best wishes for me. Nevertheless—"By the way, forgive the discursive style. I'm doing this in bits and pieces over days, in the intervals between sledgehammers going on in my head. I'm pleased to say the sledgehammers are lessening in intensity, and they tell me they're typical aftermath of skull fracture. Why do they, as soon as they've got one locked up in a hospital, tell one that one has typical this and typical that? Gets one's individuality so down."

"As for my looks, they assure me they'll be practically the same. I keep hoping they don't mean just that I'll continue to have two eyes, a nose and mouth and the usual assortment of teeth; but until they unwrap my face from its various layers of tissue, I shan't know."

"Probably you're not interested in that, any more than you used to be interested in my theories about life. However, it serves as well as anything else as an introduction to certain facts you should know. They are all for your private information. I shan't bother explaining to anyone else. Most people wouldn't believe me, and besides, it's so much trouble to make explanations."

"Well, then, I am the innocent victim of circumstances, as my defending lawyer, if it comes to that (as Eustace's people want), would be sure to remark. The circumstances, I must say, were pretty largely of my own creating, and Keith's. A little ultimate assistance from a truck."

"In other words, Keith's honor and mine are undamaged as new-fallen snow, for all our reputations are no more. Are my ridiculous smiles sufficiently explicit, my lamb? They're sufficiently dreadful, I grant."

There was a break; then: "Two days later, and much less groggily:

"Denise, it seems important for you to know that Keith and I had no affair. We went to that inn to have three days together, to make up our minds about each other. It's a fact that we clicked beyond belief, since the winter. (Not before, darling, I give you my word.)"

"We were on our way back to tell Eustace that we (Keith and I) were all for going on together, when the truck intervened, and he heard by radio instead."

"None of which changes my profound conviction that you performed the most intelligent act of your life when you married Gilbert. . . I'm getting tired, and will have to wait until tomorrow to explain that. . ."

"Here we are all freshly bandaged like a mummy."

"The major point is that neither Keith nor I are solid citizens at heart. Eustace is one; Gilbert indubitably is. And you are, fundamentally."

"People like us are always letting the solid citizens down. But within limits. As for instance, neither Keith nor I seriously considered 'deceiving' Eustace; we registered as we did just because it was convenient."

"How I detest tearing myself apart! I shouldn't do it for anyone but you. To continue the process indirectly: Keith and I just decided that the pleasantest way we knew to spend our remaining years was together. And he never felt about me as he felt about my little sister Denise, though I dislike admitting that, too."

"You will grant I tried with Eustace; but it seemed to get duller and duller."

"As to what happens now, I haven't the least notion. Keith is locked up in his father's house recuperating, and apparently has not recuperated sufficiently yet to get to a telephone."

"Eustace comes to see me three times a day. Our conversations go like this:

"Eustace: 'Are you feeling any better, Felicia?'

"I: 'Yes, Eustace, hadn't we better have a talk?'

"Eustace (with an iron face): 'I refuse to discuss anything with you until you are completely well. As far as I'm concerned, we needn't discuss anything then.'

"He does make me ashamed of myself; but that's no special help. Meanwhile, as soon as his family heard I had recovered consciousness, they sent me a letter so terrible that it was, in its way, amusing. Sort of official dismissal from the fold. They were pretty definite about giving Eustace no more money until he got rid of me. So I suppose he worries about hospital bills. But I can get nothing out of him except: 'Don't concern yourself.' As if, poor darling, he were a strong Victorian husband addressing a semi-imbecile wife!"

"The fact is, I haven't much feeling about him or Keith or myself yet. Still too dazed. Principally, in my more lucid intervals, I've thought about you, and the possible repercussions of this upon your sensibility. Which ought to prove something or other."

"My hope is, though, that you are by now so deeply and so happily committed to Gilbert, that all our disturbances are no more than small inconsequential sounds in the far distance."

"With love, my dear, "Your Felicia."

Flippant, defiant, oddly apologetic, that letter was, with a kind of fear between its lines in that style of which the discursiveness was so lightly explained."

"As for my looks—I keep hoping. Until they unwrap my face from its various layers of tissue, I shan't know. . ."

"As to what happens now, I haven't the least notion. . . Keith apparently has not recuperated sufficiently to get to a telephone."

Yes, there was fear in those sentences; and the determination not to admit fear was there too.

Suddenly, Denise felt her heart turn over. How mistaken she had been! No matter what Felicia did, she would still be important to her, because of all the years before when she was an adored older sister who could do no wrong, years when her arrogance had been just part of her charm, like her clear very white skin."

Finnian Haddie Feast

Boneless finnan haddie; milk; small cube fat salt pork; two tablespoons flour; two slightly-beaten eggs; one and one-half cups cooked diced potatoes; salt and pepper.

Soak finnan haddie in enough milk to cover the fish for one hour. Simmer slowly until tender and separate into flakes. There should be at least one cup when cooked. Cut the salt pork into small cubes and try out. For two tablespoons of the pork fat, add flour and stir constantly until well blended.

Gradually pour in one cup of milk, stirring constantly. Warming the milk in advance will help to keep mixture smooth. Bring to the boiling point, add finnan haddie, pork scraps, beaten eggs, potatoes and seasonings, including a little chopped parsley. This is delicious with toast. Finnan haddie is excellent, too, for the leisurely Sunday breakfast.

Dutch Apple Cake

A substantial dessert for wintry weather is a delicious apple cake, for which tart apples are required. This might serve as a dessert Saturday, and as a special Sunday breakfast treat, if any remains. It is equally good cold, or heated slightly in the oven.

Spread any rich shortcake mixture three-fourths of an inch thick in a buttered round or oblong pan. Cover the top with wedge-shaped slices of apples, pressing the thin edges into the dough. Sprinkle generously with sugar and cinnamon, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven at 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

Used as a dessert, this cake may be served with hard sauce, soft custard, lemon sauce, or whipped cream. It is far simpler to make than the raised apple cake, with yeast, and is popular with children.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

Deaths

BAUDER—At Bristol, Pa., March 17, 1937, William, son of the late William and Ellen Bauder. ### AT FUNERAL SERVICE

Messrs. Paul, Walter and Thomas Barrett, and Mrs. Theresa Gavegan, Beaver street, were Sunday visitors of Patrick Lawler and family, Philadelphia. On Monday, the Messrs. Barrett, and Mrs. Katharine Barrett and daughters May and Arabelle, Radcliffe street, attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Patrick Lawler, in Philadelphia.

ATTACKS OF ILLNESS
Mrs. Stanley Davies, 316 Jackson street, has been ill for the past three weeks with an attack of pleurisy and influenza.

Frank Jenks, who has been receiving treatment in Temple University Hospital, Philadelphia, for the past five weeks, returned to Jefferson avenue, Saturday, improved in health.

John Brady, Hayes street, is confined to his home by illness.

IN TOWN
Mrs. Mary Hanscom and Miss Florence Davis, Camden, N. J., week-ended as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCarron, Pond street.

Mrs. Ira Younkin, Connellsville, spent a day during the past week with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Appleton, 337 Walnut St.

FRIENDS SURPRISE MRS. JOHN MYERS ON NATAL ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. John H. Myers, 510 Radcliffe street, was agreeably surprised by several friends on the anniversary of her birthday, St. Patrick's Day.

Cards were enjoyed and supper served to: Mr. and Mrs. Johnston McAuley, Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Werner, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burtonwood and John H. Myers.

Mrs. Myers was the recipient of a bouquet of flowers.

RECIPES

Eggs With Spinach

One cup chopped, cooked spinach; three eggs, slightly beaten; three tablespoons hot water; one-third teaspoon salt; one tablespoon red pepper, cut in strips; one tablespoon green pepper, cut in strips; one tablespoon cooked ham, cut in tiny slices; one and one-half tablespoons olive oil or butter.

Add water, salt, peppers and ham to eggs. Heat omelet pan, put in fat and pour in mixture. Cook like a French omelet. Garnish with chopped parsley and serve on a layer of spinach.

This will serve as the main dish of a luncheon, and green peas may be substituted for spinach. If the olive oil flavor is not liked, use butter or shortening, but the oil prevents scorching.

Eggs in Tomatoes

Another inexpensive and tasty luncheon dish is made in this fashion: Cut a slice from the stem end of the tomato, scoop out the pulp, and slip in a whole raw egg. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven until the egg is set.

If cheese flavor is liked, add a slice of cheese at the last and slide the stuffed tomato under the broiler a minute. These may be served in individual earthen or glass baking dishes.

Fluffy Egg Nest

Children will love an egg nest, par-

BENSALEM STUDENTS TO STAGE BIG 'GYM' PHYSICAL EDUCATION PROGRAM AT CORNWELLS ON FRIDAY EVENING

BENSALEM, Mar. 18.—Over 200 students, both boys and girls, will take part in the fourth annual physical education demonstration of the Bensalem high school to be held in the school "gym" on Friday evening. Annually, after the close of the basketball season and before Spring sports draw the students' attention, those interested in "gym" activities at the Cornwells institution turn their attention to the big evening of the "gym" exhibition. These demonstrations in the past have all been of a high order, and the one planned for this year promises to be no exception.

The exhibition will include all phases of the physical education work as given in both the Junior and Senior High School by the instructors, who also direct the gym exhibition. Miss Helen M. Smith and Mr. George E. Reimer. Included in this year's program are: Rope Routine, by the seventh grade boys; Take Me Out to the Ball Game, by the seventh grade boys; Tumbling, by both boys' and girls' groups; Folk Dances, Exercises, Tap Dancing, Apparatus Work, by Senior H. S. groups; Games, by the eighth grade boys; Combatives, by the Sophomore boys; a featured girls obstacle race, and a tableau of varsity sports. Of course, there will be the usual surprise act, which promises to give the crowd its share of laughs.

All in all, it promises to be a gala evening both for participants and spectators. The opening event will take place at eight p. m.

State Will Revoke Driving Licenses for Law Violations

responsibility before his license or privilege can be reinstated. This means $11,000 in cash, or a bond in a like amount, or a certificate type of insurance policy covering the individual while operating any and all motor vehicles, in the amounts of $5,000-$10,000 public liability and $1,000 property damage.

All three forms of responding to damage must be renewed annually, or written for a period of three years from the date of the time required of the first filing.

An examination of the records at Harrisburg indicates that in the last three years, approximately 30,000 licenses have been withdrawn and in the same period of time, only 6,500 of these privileges have been reinstated.

The State is also establishing a drive for the prosecution of persons who fail to comply with Section 1214 of the Motor Vehicle Code which requires every person involved in an accident where the damages are more than $50 in the aggregate, to file a duplicate copy of the accident report within 24 hours with the Division of Safety at Harrisburg. Failure to do so will automatically result in either a suspension of the operating privilege for an indefinite period of time, or prosecution through a summary conviction carrying a fine of ten dollars and costs. This drive will be started at once.

Amelia Earhart Lands At Honolulu in Spectacular Flight

weather through the first half of her epic flight. At the halfway mark, she picked up stronger tail winds.

Aboard the plane with the aviatrix were Captain Harry Manning, radio-man and co-navigator Fred J. Noonan, veteran trans-Pacific navigator, and Paul Mantz, Miss Earhart's technical adviser.

United States Army officials and civic leaders of Honolulu gathered early at Wheeler Field to greet Miss Earhart and her aerial cohorts. It was from this same field that the aviatrix soared Eastward in January 1935, to Oakland, Cal., to become the first woman to fly both the Pacific and Atlantic.

Mayor Fred Wright of Honolulu announced plans to dedicate a monument, commemorating her 1935 flight, before the aviatrix departs for Howland Island, the second stop of her round-the-world flight.

Mantz is slated to bid adieu to Miss Earhart here. Noonan will travel with her to Howland, while Manning will continue on to Darwin, Australia.

From Darwin Miss Earhart will continue alone. Her plans call for her to stop at Karachi, India, Aden, on the East coast of Africa, Dakar, West Africa, where she will start across the South Atlantic; Natal, Brazil, Miami, Fla., Lafayette, Ind., and then back to Oakland. Other stops enroute may be made to obtain gas and oil.

Miss Earhart took off from a rain-soaked and muddy field at Oakland at 4:37 (PST) yesterday before a crowd of 2,000 persons. Her husband, George Palmer Putnam, was the last to bid her "good luck" before she hopped.

TRY SUPER PHOSPHATE

CORVALLIS, Ore. — (INS) — The most effective fertilizer for Ladina clover and grass pasture is super phosphate, according to an announcement here by Oregon State college agricultural officials. Pointing out that their findings were the results of more than ten years of experimentation, the officials declared that super phosphate, when used on clover, gives a forage of higher protein and calcium content.

TEN THOUSAND LIVE TREES SOUGHT FOR TRANSPLANTING ON WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS

NEW YORK, Mar. 18.—(INS)—Wanted—10,000 live trees for the New York 1939 World's Fair grounds. Price per tree between $200 and $500. All those interested—

No less than twenty-one concerns were interested in the above facts, not run as an advertisement as indicated, but passed around in just as effective a manner.

The Flushing fairsite is practically barren of trees and the fair corporation has decided to "import" 10,000 of them from elms to dogwood. Prices are fancy and specifications fancier.

The corporation plans that the tree transplanting should take no more than two years, which would leave a brief period for the trees to get accustomed to the new surroundings.

Flat cars and river barges will transport to the fair site practically every type of tree found in this country. The trees will come from private estates, nurseries and the wild open spaces.

Specifications demand large trees with good shading areas and some will weigh in the neighborhood of twenty-five tons, including earth always transported with trees.

Six to eighteen inches in trunk diameter and from fifteen to fifty-five feet in height is the specification table for oaks, elms and maples, with the larger sizes preferred. The branch spread of the elms should be thirty-four to forty feet.

Plans call for the first 500 trees to be planted beginning March first on the avenues originating from the fair's Theme Center. Here there is a secondary view—since the site will be a city park after the close of the fair, these trees will line streets within the park.

The prices range from $200, for a moderate sized dogwood, to $500 for the larger sized elms. It was explained, however, that the smallest part of the cost was the actual price of the tree—the rest being transportation charges.

The original 500 to be planted during March will set the fair corporation back some $100,000.

Penguin Pete is a former resident of the Galapagos Islands, now lives at Redondo Beach, Cal., and from the way he looks he wouldn't go back to Galapagos for the world. They haven't got anyone like Nan Gray, who's holding him, in those lonely islands. Incidentally, Pete can perform 40 tricks—and he went through his routine for Nan.

NOT SO DUMB

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—The newest wrinkle in escaping from jail was revealed here by a deaf and dumb mute who wrote his way out. Hailed in court on a drunkenness charge after a night in jail, the prisoner answered in writing the questions which were put to him by Municipal Judge Cohn. His replies were so skillful and persuasive that the court allowed him to go free on his promise to "do his best" to remain at home and quit drinking.

Leslie Howard says Luckies are "tops" with his throat

"Years ago, as an ambitious young actor, I was impressed how well my throat liked Luckies and how well they suited my idea of a perfect cigarette. That impression still stands. In my recent tour of 'Hamlet', with its many performances each week and the attendant tax on my throat, I have been convinced anew that this light smoke is both delightful to my taste and the 'top' cigarette for an actor's throat."

Leslie Howard

THE FINEST TOBACCO—
"THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Howard verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

FILM STARS CUT DOWN ON LAVISH EXPENDITURES FOR HOMES AND FURNISHINGS

By Wallace X. Rawles
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, Mar. 18—(INS)—Attempting to "keep up with the Joneses" no longer is Hollywood's favorite indoor sport.

An economy wave prompted by generous donations to flood relief and the payment of income taxes struck the cinema city with a bang.

The stars no longer take friends on a tour of their estates and brag about the expensive furnishings. Instead, they hint of auction sales and second-hand bargains.

Hugh Herbert, the comedian, said the other day that all the furnishings for his new ranch home in San Fernando valley were acquired at a small second hand store.

"I picked those wicker chairs up at auction for 85 cents each," he said to guests. "An uncle in Detroit gave me that lampshade and I got the rug for practically nothing at a fire sale."

To prove it, Herbert turned over the rug to show the "scorchers."

Dick Powell and Joan Blondell have been furnishing their honeymoon home in Beverly Hills with utmost simplicity. Joan has done much of the furnishing herself, and Powell, who likes to tinker with gadgets, has contributed a home-made lamp and a folding bed table.

Gone from Hollywood are the days of gold leaf bathtubs and solid marble staircases costing more than five years' salary for the average working man. Small ranch homes have come back into vogue and the accompanying furnishings reflect the simplicity of the home. Most of the stars put their money into real estate and annuities—after Uncle Sam and the state of California have collected their income taxes.

George Brent furnished his ranch house with simple Monterey furniture from a nearby store. Swimming pools in large part have given way to modest fish-ponds, and architects' blueprints for new homes take up about half the space they formerly occupied.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Choose Your Weapons

Never use a sharp instrument for scraping a washbowl, stove or other porcelain or enamel-covered article. Such an implement is apt to chip, or break off the covering, leaving a gouged spot which ruins the appearance, menaces fingers and health, too, if the utensil is used for cooking.

Wearily Housewife Lifts 6,465 Pounds On Washday!

A constructive and revealing survey was completed recently by a leading washing machine manufacturing company. Statistics showed that:

Every housewife lifts 6,465 pounds during her weekly "wash day," and her arm travels six and one-half miles in the ironing process!

The ironing of seven shirts alone means the lifting of a three and one-half pound iron 140 miles, or a total lift of 490 pounds, the survey showed. Another point was that the ironing of 40 handkerchiefs is responsible for an exertion of 500 pounds of energy by the busy worker.

The company conducted the interesting investigation and compiled the statistics in the hope that the amazing figures would emphasize the importance of equipping homes with labor-saving washing and ironing machines, thereby conserving an enormous waste of energy expended in the old-fashioned method of handling laundry.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

By ANN PAGE

EGGS and fish are both economical foods to use this week as supplies are large and prices reasonable. Most meats and poultry are higher, though veal is both good quality and value, particularly for quarter cuts. Butter is higher.

Lower prices are anticipated on asparagus, beans and peas which recently have been too high for most people to use. Broccoli and cauliflower are already more reasonable while beets, carrots, cabbage, onions, spinach and turnips continue to be standbys of the average budget. Old potatoes are attractively priced.

Grapefruit continue to be cheap; more liberal supplies of strawberries are expected while apples, bananas and oranges are still the backbone of the winter fruit diet.

Here are three dinner menus built around foods to be found in most markets at reasonable cost.

Low Cost Dinner

FARMERS AND GUN CLUB PROTECT THE BEAVERS

EDGELEY, Mar. 18.—The March meeting of Edgeley Rod & Gun Club was held in Headley Manor Fire House, Monday evening, with Elwood Britton presiding.

Members of the beaver committee stated they succeeded in getting co-operation of farmers along with the club in protecting the beavers during the trapping season in Bucks county. As far as is known there have been no beavers trapped in any of the colonies.

The game committee reported receiving 16 cock birds from the state, and at a later date received 49 more which were distributed throughout the county.

The Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen Clubs banquet, held at Doylestown Armory, was attended by Ronald Swain, who in turn related to the club members some of the interesting talks given by members of the Pennsylvania State Board of Game Commissioners. Major Biddle, who is president of the board, gave detailed descriptions concerning the hatching and raising of game birds which is being done at the present time on a large scale.

The trap committee is contemplating at the present time building a shelter at the trap grounds to protect the patrons from adverse weather conditions.

A .22 rifle range has been installed, and it was decided that all rifles used by participants shall be equipped with metallic sights; this means a rifle with a telescope sight will not be eligible to compete for any prize.

The prize to be given for the highest score at the next shoot will be a .22 bolt action rifle. This shoot will be held in the near future. The contest is positively open to the public.

CHIEF LITTLE WOLF IS VICTOR OVER MARSHALL

TRENTON, N. J., Mar. 18.—Chief Little Wolf, Navajo Indian, won the feature bout, a best two-fall-out-of-three affair, at the Arena last night when he pinned the shoulders of Floyd Marshall, of Arizona, for the first and deciding fall.

The Indian took the first fall when he pounced on Marshall after felling the latter with a series of forearm blows. The Wolf softened up his foe considerably by the frequent and effective use of his knee Marshall, unable to ward off the Chief's rowdy tactics, took considerable abuse without a whimper. The Indian was the aggressor during most of the bout and he kept Floyd back-tracking about the ring with his slugging tactics. Little Wolf was awarded the fall as he applied a body press after 18 minutes.

Marshall gained the second fall after 13 minutes when he employed some of the same tactics that the Chief had been pursuing. Floyd carried the attack during this time and had the Indian pleading for leniency as he rained blow after blow upon the Navajo's head and midsection.

The deciding fall went to the Indian after he stung Marshall with a blow to the face. Floyd was knocked to the canvas, and the Chief pounced on him to gain the fall.

The semi-windup provided one of the best matches seen here in some time. Scotty McDougall and Matros Kirilinko were the principals, and these two masters of the sport brought rounds of applause from the gallery with their display of the real technique of wrestling. The bout ended in a draw and the fans readily showed their appreciation of the match with a great hand for the pair.

The second bout was won by Bob Managoff when he flattened Ed Cook with a body press. Les Ryan took the opener from Bobby Roberts after 19 minutes.

HORNSBY THINKS BROWNS HAVE CHANCE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Mar. 18.—(INS)—While I think the New York Yankees will be the club to beat in this year's American League pennant chase, you can put this down to remember: Nobody's going to be asking if the Browns are still in the League.

That's the double-barreled prediction of Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis team, at his Spring training camp here.

And when the 1937 edition of the Browns trots out on the field opening day, don't be surprised to see the Rajah himself, as well as another of baseball's "old timers"—Sunny Jim Bottomley—taking two of the infield posts.

Bottomley has been playing a lot of first base at training quarters here, while Hornsby still takes a lusty swing at the plate, besides doing the master minding for the Browns' new owners and covering a big circle around second base.

The Browns' probable starting lineup, not in batting order, will probably include Rollie Hemsley behind the plate; Bottomley or Harry Davis at first base; Gerald Lipscomb at second; if Hornsby decides not to play; Billy Knickerbocker at short; Harlan Chitt at third; Joe Vosmik in left; Sam West in center; Beau Bell in right, if

A Workout with Daddy

There's no fire—it's just Manager Jimmy Wilson, of the Phillies, giving his 9-year-old daughter, Jane, a workout after he had completed a workout on the diamond himself at the Phillies' winter training camp at Winter Haven, Fla. Some form, eh?

he signs, and if not, either Ed Coleman, reserve outfielder who aspires to be a pitcher, or Mel Mazzera, flash with the San Antonio Missions of the Texas League last year. Ethan Allen, former Philly and Cub reserve, is also on deck and ready for outfielder's duty.

BOWLING RESULTS

In the Bristol League A. & P. Stores won 3 of the 4 points from Moffo's, Ralph Cahall hitting 666 for high league and high single of 260. Monaco of Moffo had 626 and Gaddish of A. & P. also had 636 total and a single of 256.

In the American League the Elks won 4 points from the Aces. Joe Wilkinson was high for the Elks with 599 and Christopher 534 for the Aces.

In the National League Asco won 3 of the 4 points from Schmidt's Florists. Black had 531 for Schmidt's and Mulligan 521 for Asco.

In the American League L. Beebe won 3 of the 4 points from Croymon Fire Co. Detweiler of Beebe rolled 488 and Martindell of Croymon 477.

FARMERS AND GUN CLUB PROTECT THE BEAVERS

EDGELEY, Mar. 18.—The March meeting of Edgeley Rod & Gun Club was held in Headley Manor Fire House, Monday evening, with Elwood Britton presiding.

Members of the beaver committee stated they succeeded in getting co-operation of farmers along with the club in protecting the beavers during the trapping season in Bucks county. As far as is known there have been no beavers trapped in any of the colonies.

The game committee reported receiving 16 cock birds from the state, and at a later date received 49 more which were distributed throughout the county.

The Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen Clubs banquet, held at Doylestown Armory, was attended by Ronald Swain, who in turn related to the club members some of the interesting talks given by members of the Pennsylvania State Board of Game Commissioners.
